

ELECTRICAL BLOCK POSITIONING DEVICES AND METHODS OF USE THEREFOR

ABSTRACT

The present invention provides positioning mechanisms for devices that cause conduction blocks or ablation in desired areas of tissue. The positioning mechanisms allow for variable geometry of the target sites and enable more accurate therapy at the tissue site.